TUESDAY, MARCH 4, 1873. The Reported Scheme for Reuniting

the Virginias. A correspondent who writes in our col umns this morning takes seriously to heart the reports of a movement for the annexation of the Valley of Virginia to annexation of the Valley of Virginia to this State, and points out in a very forcible way that such an addition would place the State at the mercy of the reactionary element and end in our restoration to Old Virginia. We have heard a tion to Old Virginia. We have heard a land been able to control the mad country and the time of this approximates a land been able to control the mad country and the time of this approximates a land been able to control the mad country and the state of the same country and the same country are the same country and the same country and the same country are the same country and the same country and the same country are same country and the same country and the same country are same country and the same country and the same country are same country and the same country and the same country are same country are same country and the same country are same country are same country and the same country are same country are same country and the same country are same country and the same country are same country are same country and the same country ar alk in the Valley, and have jested a little about it in connection with the proposed excision of the Pan-Handle; but we have not before been aware that the idea of snnexing the Valley had any serious supadopted by the West Virginia Legislature. separated from us by natural barriers and whose affinities and interests in consequence of those barriers lie in an opposite direction; but in addition to this we rely pentors among whom the monors and emoluments would have to be divided, as would result from annexing the Valley of an anthem for the obsequies of a State. Virginia. Still less do we believe any remion of the two Virginias can ever be effected, either by the inskilious expedient the lorizon of the future. Give it a favoring wind, and it will swell to a magnitude. simply because the sentiment of the peobetray its constituency by consenting to them in readiness for delivery to old Vir-

are confident the popular sentiment on this question is as we represent it, practia short intermission from the first, is soon played, and closes with "the death weakened and demoralized by the wretched management of the party that came into control of State affairs through the elections of 1870. If anything could reconcile our people to the calamity of going back to old Virginia, with her enormous debt, her preponderating black vote, her desolated territory and impoverished people—it would be two or three years more such extravagance, mismanagement, the proposed union. They have their cally united against any reunion with Virnore such extravagance, mismanagement, corruption and pucrility as we have had at Charleston the past two years. People do begin to say to each other, while not quite meaning it of course, that it things things are at the worst they begin to mend. As they can't get much worse, they must soon get better. At any rate, the remedy for present evils is with our own people If we get back under old Virginia domination this would be so no longer; then the

7 he Next U. S. Senator.-The Great Contest Between Camden and McMillan.

After an absence for a few days I am once more at the Permanent Seat. During my absence, if rumor be true, the Legislature has been behaving badly, and if caused by what is charged—too heavy a charge of the "over joyful"—it is to be hoped that it will not again occur. It is said, and seems to be admitted on all hands, that much of the trouble has its foundation in something deeper than any mere temporary excitement. The Democratic party is deeply exercised in relation to the next II. S. Senator. While it is cononce more at the Permanent Seat. Durto the next U. S. Senator. While it is concoded that he must be selected from the western portion of the State, which ex-cludes Travers and Faulkner, it is far from being settled from which wing of the party shall be taken.

The loyal and semi-loyal Democrats—or as you call them in your part of the State Conservatives—contend that they have been badly overlooked in the recent distribution of offices in the State, and the square friends of the lost cause say that is just as it should be, for if the loyal Democrats had all pitched in like men the Southern Confederacy would to day be a fixed fact. The Hale House bar room is a good place for a quiet stranger to pick up the ideas and plans of politicians. The Conservatives talk loud and long in layor of the Hon. Samuel McMillan as their standard-bearer, whilst the ultra Democrats generally are ardently supporting the claims of Judge Camden. I would think from what their friends say of them, either would make a good Senator and fair representative of the State. Me Millen is the most polished, smooth and best looking gentleman, while Camden looks like a good earnest worker, of mo ordinary mind. It is understood that if the present Legislature were to elect the Newstor the distinguished, commons. Benator, the distinguished commoner would beat his lordship, but the supporters of the candidate of the upper House expect to turn the tables at the next election. But I may be describing gentlemen that you know much better than I do.

ocrats of to-day repudiate because they re conservative, honest and sincere in offices as in all things else. In our part f the State such men as Price, Davis, of the State such men as Price, Davis, Caperton, and many more of our best men "can't take a trick," because they won't aid in retaliatory measures. On such men the salvation not only of our State butthe whole country depends. Take for instance, such a man as Lamb of your city, who in 1861 took a firm stand for the Union, but who never lost his love for thesouthern people, never had a desire to harm them; then take Price, of Greenbrier, who acted with the South. Greenbrier, who acted with the South but who never lost his love for the sens of 1004, many a dark and heartrend-ing page would have been omitted in the history of our country. It is just such men we want in power to day, instead of the political weathercocks that whip overy point of the compass for office or place, who would set one race against
